After a complete request for services is received, documentation will be prepared and dispatched to all interested parties. Reverse and improvement exchanges, which involve significant amounts of documentation in addition to those required in a standard delayed exchange, can also be documented quickly as needed by the client.

COMMERCIAL DIVISION - THE “API ADVANTAGE”

API has participated in over 120,000 exchange transactions since 1990. These exchanges have consisted of all types of transactions, from simultaneous to “parking arrangement” exchanges. Our Commercial Division prides itself in the flexibility of our exchange procedures, which allow our staff to adapt quickly and efficiently to any type of exchange situation. The experts in our Commercial Division are always available to address concerns and provide consultation on delayed and simultaneous exchanges.

The Commercial Division offers a very sophisticated structure for reverse and improvement exchanges and the most qualified professionals to facilitate these complex and unique transactions. In a reverse or improvement exchange, the Commercial Division forms an Exchange Accommodation Titleholder, commonly referred to as an “EAT”, to hold title to a the property to be “parked” in the transaction. A new single purpose entity is used in most cases to ensure the parked property is fully insulated from any liability that might arise in any given transaction. The Commercial Division creates a limited liability company (LLC) to act as the Exchange Accommodation Titleholder for each Exchanger. By holding property in its own separate entity, API isolates the Exchanger from liability issues. Each separate entity complies with state and federal registration and filing requirements. API has performed thousands of reverse and improvement exchanges and our Commercial Division can help you navigate through the potentially complex and destructive pitfalls. The Commercial Division’s services include:

- Consultation
- Formation of a separate Limited Liability Company (LLC)
- Prepare exchange documentation
- Consult with lender on tax deferred exchange requirements
- Review third-party documentation
- Coordination of the closing
- Monitor ownership of the “parked” property
- Construction disbursements in build-to-suit/improvement exchanges
- Dissolution of the LLC
- Interface with the tax counsel in structuring a complex exchange

In addition to facilitating real property exchanges, the Commercial Division is experienced in facilitating personal property exchanges. Personal property exchanges take on many types and forms, and our counselors are prepared to assist Exchangers in any type of personal property exchange transaction.
